

What is the difference between organisation and programme goals?

Audience: Can making a vocational centre financially independent be deemed as a goal or a vision?

Speaker: It can be a goal but a long-term goal. You can also create short-term goals. It is actually your vision, as it is a big project.

Audience: The vision of the vocational training centre is to empower special individuals to become independent contributing members of the society. The second point is to make the section financially independent. These are two separate aims.

I am a 21yr old, mentally challenged person attending this school. The goal for the training sections would be to make individuals like myself independent and contributing members of the society. Towards this goal I am taught to make agarbattis;

I earn Rs 2 per piece and at the end of the month I get Rs 22, making me independent. The second goal would be to make the entire section, where there are more 30 individuals like me financially independent.

Speaker: That is a departmental vision and what is related to the 21 yr old and their lives is the organisational vision.
