

How do you word mission statements?

Audience: How should they all word their mission statement? Most of the time there is a lot of overlap.

Talking about my section where a child comes with a problem and we provide early intervention. My vision would be to provide early intervention to affected children to improve their future life and make them independent in their daily activities. My mission would be to have a state-of-the-art therapeutic centre; all therapeutic interventions are provided to a child; make the centre financially independent so that we can support maximum poor children and network with other organizations. We want to provide all the possible options to a child who comes to us and increase awareness towards the condition which ultimately leads to prevention

You could have each point you just mentioned in bullet form and simple sentences, not one rolling into the other. Your points could be the mission statement. Your goals are set to achieve these points and your objectives which shall help you achieve your goal, leading to your mission statement. A vision statement normally should be one or two lines, not a long winded line but crisp two or three lines. A mission could be longer but it should be brief.
